Contents

Foreword vii

Hello, New World 1
- Philosophy still matters 2
- Code, data and algos cultures 4
- Notes 6

The Code: Software is Eating the Planet 7
- Software is now in command 7
- Technological unconscious 9
- Code meets philosophy 14
- Hidden and sudden 19
- A programmable world 25
- Notes 28

The Sensor: Senses, Sensorium and New Sense 31
- The empire of sensors 31
- Beyond measurements 34
- Socrates wears the fitbit 37
- Movements and logistics 41
- Environmental sensing 44
- Notes 50

The Algorithm: Exploring/Exploiting Alien Intelligences 53
- Kasparov returns to move 53
- Inhuman, too inhuman 56
- Ontologies as algorhythmies 61

A squared automation 66
Are humans still driving? 69
Notes 74

The Datum: Ex-perience Beyond the Experience 77
It's the end of experience 77
New digital temporalities 80
The birth of code/space 85
Elemental, my dear Watson! 88
Data as ultimate interface 94
Notes 97

The Platform: Emerging Accidental Megastructures 101
Living in a stacked world 101
Earth to cloud and back 104
Platforms: hybrid species 110
Network, stack and chain 113
Vulnerability beyond risk 117
Notes 121

Conclusion: Toward a Proto-Data Age 125
Seven surprising A's 125
Led by future (not past) 128

Afterword 131

References 135